

Participate in the Brainy Kids Study!

Researchers at the University of Pittsburgh/UPMC are looking for healthy children (ages 3-5) to participate in a research study investigating the developing child brain. Children will wear a safe and painless device that measures brain activity using infrared light. Participants must be free of mental and physical disorders. Children will be paid and will receive a small prize.

Call to see if you qualify: 412-383-5280
childbrain@upmc.edu