DOES YOUR 4TH – 6TH GRADER WANT TO BE PART OF A READING STUDY?

Researchers at the University of Pittsburgh are looking for children in 4th, 5th, and 6th grades to participate in a research study about how children learn new words while they are reading.

This is a one-session study lasting about 120 minutes. Your child would be asked to do school-like activities like reading and answering vocabulary questions. For one activity, we will measure your child's eye movements as he/she reads.

Compensation will be provided for your child's time and any parking costs.

All research activities will be conducted in Child Language and Literacy Lab (Room 6068) in Forbes Tower, University of Pittsburgh. Your participation is completely voluntary.

Your child may be eligible to participate if he or she:

- Is in fourth, fifth, or sixth grade
- Uses English as his/her first or main language
- Has normal vision OR uses glasses or contact lens that correct vision
- Has normal hearing in both ears
- Has no history of diagnosis of dyslexia, developmental delay, autism spectrum disorder, or Asperger's syndrome
